"As we each pause with remembrance today, we are reminded that respect for each other and this country we love is without question what centers us as Americans. We remain a nation firmly footed in the light of better days, beyond the shadows of tragedy. With common purpose and a shared sense of duty with honor we move forward in the pursuit of common causes that mark our history as a great nation and a compassionate people. Rightfully today we remember."

-- Congressman Russ Carnahan, MO-03
